The Garbage Ordinance Passed its Second Reading-Dr. Thornton's Sanitary Reports Received.

The Legislative Council met yesterday, th President Hadden in the chair, and esses. James, Gavin, Lee, Kney, Wallace nd Graves being present.

The following annual report of Dr. Thornon was received and filed. QUARANTINE. Though my views and official acts for the st two years are sufficiently pronounced on subject of quarantine not to make a scription of it at length now necessary, lem it my duty to bring the subject directly before you as one of paramount importance to Memphia at certain seasons of the year. In my second annual report I recommended that a quarantine of observation be estab-lished every year not later than by the first or middle of May, and a proper surveillance exercised over all freights and passengers from points south of this where there is reaon to apprehend yellow-fever may exist.

The reasons for that recommendation are lly set forth in that report, and as my views nive undergone no change since, I deem it uperfluoustorepeat them here. The fact that no epidemic of yellow-lever developed during the past two years is no guarantee against formerly most frequently prevailed, or Should a necessity for such preparation arise by an existing danger without timely preparation in auticipation of it, it might be too late to take such precautions successfully after it has developed. Therefore, in anticipation of a possible danger, and for the pur-

UNSANITARY HOUSES, By reference to table of statement of work

By reference to table of statement of work done it will be noted that 19 houses are reported as destroyed, and 50 repaired during the year, which makes a total of 244 destroyed during the past three years. It must not be implied, however, that these 19 houses were destroyed as provided for in section 162 Taxing-District ordinances (Heiskell's Digest, page 98) for the destruction of such houses as are found to be improper habitations from a sanitary standpoint, for though tions from a sanitary standpoint, for though they were condemned by the Board of Health they were destroyed voluntarily by their owners. The destruction or proper renovation of this class of houses is an imortant feature in the sanitary reformation augurated in 1879. Several localities in the city have been notably improved by the destruction of such houses, but this work has destruction of such houses, but this work has not been carried far enough, as there are many buildings in various localities which should be likewise destroyed. This work was arrested prematurely owing to some legal questions arising as to the ordinance which have not yet been decided by the courts. This is an important question for two reasons: First—It enters largely into the general hygienic condition of the city as a purely public health measure; second, as an act of justice to those who voluntarily complied with the demands made by the Board of Health and destroyed their houses, Board of Health and destroyed their hot

Board of Health and destroyed their houses, and to the second of the second of the second of the ordinance above named. There are a number of houses yet standing which are just as amenable to the ordinance as those destroyed, being unsanitary, defective in architecture and construction, which may be justly classed as public nuisances, and others dangerous to life from a fireman's stand-point and amenable to section 135, Taxing-District ordinance (page 87 Heiskell's digest). Dr. Thoraton made the following special report as to report as to UNSANITARY PROPERTY:

In compliance with your instructions, in company with the health officer I have examined premises No. 70 Front street with the amined premieses No. 70 Front street with the view of reporting as to its sanitary and general hygienic condition. which he prized so highly as a relic of the past as to positively refuse to part with it. It is printed on buff-colored fancy note, with gilt embellishments and crimped edges. The subject of the address, as usual, was a recurse of the events of the year, done in verse. The first event alluded to was "the glorious jubilee," which refers to the celebration of the completion of the Memphis and Charleston railway. The next was the "hard times" of that year, which caused many bank suspen-sions. The ladies wore hoops then, which is pleasantly touched. "Selling off at cost" comes next, followed by the erection of the iron rail around Court Square. Then the completion of the Memphis Theater is chronicled concluding with bright prospects and big hopes for the prosperity of Memphis, etc. The document is truly a valuable relic of those days when "we did not know how well-

WHO WILL HELP US? An Appeal for Aid to Which Everyone Should Respond.

To the Editors of the Appeal: The Woman's Christian Association of Memphis failing in other ways of raising money requisite to sustain their work for the needy of our city, find themselves shut up to the alternative of dinner-giving. We propose to begin a series of dinners, on the same plan as was so successful two years ago, on Tuesday, 14th instant, and the object of this communication is to lay before the public, through the medium of your columns, our needs and our re-quests in behalf of this object. Our need is to raise sufficient funds to pay our in debtedness; to provide for indispensable im-provements and replenishing at the Mission "Your stock is nearly all gone?"

"Yes; most of it is lost, but a little hay would not go amiss. You will gain some idea of the extremities to which the people are reduced when I tell you that they are pulling out the bodies of dead cattle and skinning them in order to obtain food."

"Over how much of the county does the water averaged?"

"Over how much of the county does the water averaged?" With faith and labor and the blessing of God nothing is impossible. We are resolved to nothing is impossible. We are resolved to give the one and ask the other, trusting results to Him. Who will help us? Will not everybody? Every one whose heart stirs him up, and every one whom his spirit makes willing, both men and women, as many as are willing-hearted, and all the women that are wise-hearted—let these join together in this good work for God and hu-manity, and it is done. Contributions of all kinds will be needed-money, materials and work. Tickets, either for the season or for single dinners, will be on sale in a few days, and the ladies whose names follow are now ready to receive subscriptions in behalf of their several tables, each table being assessed $500. Dinners, 50 cents; no extras, except
